

Pam Fisher, formerly known as Pam Henshaw, is an itinerant teacher for deaf and hard of hearing (DHH) students with Orange County Public Schools in Orlando. She has been teaching for 23 years, 21 of those years with DHH students. In 1986 she received her bachelor's degree in Deaf Education, Secondary Education, and English from Flagler College in St. Augustine. Pam worked as a dorm supervisor and substitute teacher at the Florida School for the Deaf and the Blind while attending Flagler. In 2002, she earned a master's degree in Educational Technology from the University of Central Florida and received National Board certification in 2006.

When she's not teaching, Pam is an avid bowler. She participates in local, state, and national level tournaments as well as weekly bowling leagues. She and her husband Jack do aerial photography as a hobby/business with digital cameras suspended from miniature helium-filled blimps. Pam and Jack got married in July of 2009.

Pam served two years as president-elect of FEHI before becoming president in 2007. She is now serving as past president.
